次の英文を読み、後の問いに答えなさい。①～④は段落番号を示す。

① Nature is now facing one of its worst crises. We cannot spend a day without watching <sup>(1)</sup> news on environmental problems. In Japan, there was heavy rain in July 2020. Many people were not able to go outside their houses and were very worried about their lives. In South America, the Upsala Glacier in Argentina is melting. It was covered in ice and snow about 100 years ago. However, the sea temperature has risen since 1928 and it has caused the glacier to melt. Now the area is covered in water. So, what is causing global climate change?

② Climate scientists say that one of the main causes of climate change is <sup>(2)</sup> deforestation. Forests cover a third of the surface of the earth. Humans and animals need forests for their survival. For example, trees are cut down for materials to build houses. The cutting down of many trees is called deforestation. Deforestation causes damage to animal habitats. The destruction of habitats results in the loss of living space for plants and animals. If humans continue to do this, many plants and animals will die. Deforestation also leads to climate change. Rain forests usually help to control the earth's temperature by trapping CO2. However, when deforestation takes place in large areas of the rain forest, it cannot do this effectively. This causes global warming.

③ Our changing way of life also makes deforestation more severe. Science has made our lives better and humans now do not live in the mountains and forests as often as in the past. As a result, <sup>(3)</sup> the number of some animals in the mountains and forests is increasing. This makes deforestation worse. For example, the number of burrowing rodents is now growing. They turn the soil to get their favorite food and discourage the re-growth of forests. The number of deer is increasing too. This is because the deer are able to survive the warmer winters caused by global warming. Deer love to eat fruits, vegetables, and trees. If more deer continue to eat trees, the number of trees will become fewer.

④ Global temperatures have gone up in the last 100 years. One of the main causes of global warming is human activities. We cut down trees and change our way of life to make it more convenient. These activities lead to serious climate change. If we do not stop these activities, things will get worse. More people and animals will suffer because climate change has <sup>(4)</sup> serious negative effects on the earth. We must do something before it is too late.
